

End of Unit Reflection Questions:

1. Thoughtbook tasks are designed to help you identify your prior knowledge about a topic, then revisit that task at the end of a lesson after you have learned more about the topic. For the task you have chosen, identify 2 or more new things you learned. For each thing you learned, provide evidence for this learning from your Thoughtbook Task. You may use point form or a table to share this information.
2. Which of the things you learned in this lesson did you find most challenging? How did you overcome this challenge? Your answer should be 2-3 sentences.
3. How does the new learning identified in question 1 affect your understanding of other topics in this unit? Your answer should be 2-3 sentences.
4. How does the new learning identified in question 1 affect your understanding of the world around you? Your answer should be 2-3 sentences.

End of Unit Reflections Assessment Rubric

Rubric: Review the following rubric. Your teacher will use it to assess your work. You should refer to it too, so you'll know exactly what your finished assignment should look like. Review this Rubric Deconstruction for help understanding rubrics or levels.
